Activities of Interest To All in The Various Communities

GLEANED BY SCRIBES

The Soroptimist Club of Bucks County honored winners of the girls' softball and basketball league who competed in Doylestown Youth Recreational Council League.

The 30 girls were guests at a banquet in Doylestown, as were also their mothers.

The winning team of the six basketball teams in the league for the 10 to 13 year old girls, the winning team of the six softball teams in the league for the 14 to 18 year old girls, and the winning team of the four softball teams were among those honored at the dinner. 3 YOUTHS ARE HELD
FOR STEALING TRUCK

Trio Taken Into Custody At Bell Air, Maryland, By State Police

TOOK SECOND TRUCK

Three 15-year-old youths from Virginia are being held by Bucks county officials in connection with stealing a truck near Oxford Valley. The three youths were arrested in Maryland where they were taken into custody by Chief Bucks County Detective Anthony Russo, and Pvt. J. Liebergold of the Penna. State Police. The boys are also wanted by New Jersey police. The suspects are Robert Martin and James Kelleher, both of 507 N. West street, Alexandria, Va., and David Hill, 26 John Robert Homes street, of the same city.

According to the police, the three youths had run away from home with the intention of going to New York City. They reached Metuchen, N. J., where they allegedly stole a GMC truck. From there they drove to the Lincoln Highway, near Oxford Valley, slept in the truck all night and in the morning they abandoned it and it is reported they took another truck that was parked near Thomas M. Wheatley's garage.

The boys then drove the second truck to Bell Air, Md., abandoned this one and were hitch-hiking when they were picked up by the Bell Air State Police. Russo and Liebergold went to Bell Air yesterday and returned the prisoners to Bucks county. They are being charged with larceny of a truck.

A lot of history was made when Congress pushed the Tax-Cut Bill through over the President's veto.

During the second World War, taxes in this country were raised to unprecedented heights. In the case of men whose enterprise had built up large businesses, the source of employment to thousands, the proportion was much greater. Some worked eleven months for the government, to only one month for themselves.

For nearly three years after the end of hostilities, this staggering tax burden rode un-trimmed. Now Congress, despite the President's stubbornness, had reduced it.

Another striking fact about the Tax-Cut Bill is that it represents the carrying out of a political platform by the Republican Party after the most bitter and discouraging obstacles. In the campaign of 1946, which resulted in a landslide for the Republicans, the promise of tax reduction was one of the main planks. The Republicans had to fulfill their promise the hard way. The President vetoed three tax-cut measures in succession. The Republicans lacked votes to over-ride. They got enough votes by converting Democrats to their views. On each of the three vetoes, the votes against the President increased—not because there were any more Republicans in Congress, but because more and more Democrats were deserting the fallacious economic opinions of their President.

Addition Will House New Sanctuary; Plans Are Adopted

CONGREGATION MEETS

At the annual congregational meeting of Bristol Presbyterian Church last evening, plans submitted by J. M. Hlew & Sons, Philadelphia architects, for an addition to the present edifice were adopted.

J. M. Hlew, who was introduced by Harry Streeter, chairman of the new church building committee, gave a comprehensive report. The plans call for erection of a sanctuary, extending from the present edifice to Radcliffe street. This sanctuary will replace the present one, the one used now to be used as main Sunday School room; also for "overflow" on occasion when the main auditorium is filled. An archway will link the two auditoriums.

A report of financial status and enrollment of each organization was given by Frank Weik, clerk of session. The pastor, the Rev. Edward G. Yeomans, then presented the proposed budget for the year, such being adopted.

A covered dish supper was in charge of Mrs. Charles Peet, she being assisted by a group of members of the Women's Guild.

The meeting was opened by a short devotional period in charge of the pastor. The board of trustees then assumed charge, presiding officer being Robert C. Ruchel. Reading of the minutes was by secretary, Harold Hansen; and treasurer's report was submitted by Herbert Pettit. A report on recent meeting of Bristol Presbyterian Church last evening, plans submitted by J. M. Blew & Sons, Philadelphia architects, for an addition to the present edifice were adopted.

J. M. Blew, who was introduced by Harry Streeter, chairman of the new church building committee, gave a comprehensive report. The plans call for erection of a sanctuary, extending from the present edifice to Radcliffe street. This sanctuary will replace the present one, the one used now to be used as main Sunday School room; also for "overflow" on occasion when the main auditorium is filled. An archway will link the two auditoriums.

A report of financial status and enrollment of each organization was given by Frank Weik, clerk of session. The pastor, the Rev. Edward G. Yeomans, then presented the proposed budget for the year,
such being adopted.

A covered dish supper was in charge of Mrs. Charles Peet, she being assisted by a group of members of the Women's Guild.

The meeting was opened by a short devotional period in charge of the pastor. The board of trustees then assumed charge, presiding officer being Robert C. Ruehl.
Reading of the minutes was by secretary, Harold Hansen; and treasurer's report was submitted by Herbert Pettit. A report on recent

CO-OPERATION URGED

A woman's army has invaded the their line of attack. The cap-borough have been named. Others are invited to join the forces.

At a meeting held the group was addressed by Dr. Mary Lehman, William A. Pearson, Scott Wetherill and J. S. Lynn.

Dr. Mary Lehman, general ward chairlady, said today: "The children go home from school asking
'has the clean-up inspector been strategy of the youngsters is to deter some of the clean-up until after the first inspection, to make a real contrast in the before and after appearance of the homes and acquiring the 'street of the month'

sign for their ward."

PROTEST TO BE FILED TODAY WITH GOVERNOR OVER 'DEAD-END' MENACE; 20TH CRASH IN 10 MONTHS THERE

Trio Hurt Within Half-Hour After Hulmeville Council Suggests Concerted Action Over Langhorne "Death-Trap"—Traffic Temporarily Re-Routed, Starting Today, Due to Repairs on Lincoln Highway.

Protest is to be filed with Governor James M. Duff today over the inadequate markings on Pa. Route 231 at Spur 281, a four-lane highway extending from west of Parkland to a "dead-end" east of Langhorne borough.

One-half hour after decision was made by one borough council, last night, to send protest to the governor of Pennsylvania, the 20th automobile accident since June 1, 1947, occurred at the spot, three young men being injured.

AUTHORIZE DRAWING OF SPECIFICATIONS

For Re-Building of Ford, Reetz and Lincoln Avenues, Hulmeville

REPORTS ARE HEARD

HULMEVILLE, Apr. 6—Authorization was given by Hulmeville borough council last evening for drawing up of specifications for rebuilding of Ford, Reetz and Lincoln avenues, here. Edward Pickering, surveyor, and a representative of Kauffman Brothers were in attendance at the April council session to consider details with members.

Councilmen discussed various phases of the re-building program, and necessary details leading up to this work.

Sidewalk committee reported possible danger to passersby from condition of retaining wall at the Walker property, Hulmeville avenue
and Green street, said committee being instructed to notify agency
in charge to look into the matter.

Report was heard that repairs
were made and others contemplated on Main street, north of Trenton avenue, where a bridge spans the Rio Grande. Consideration was given to placing culvert marker at this spot.

Councilmen discussed placing of "No parking" signs in front of Hulmeville Hotel, the space on Hulmeville avenue, between Trenton avenue and Main street being deemed too narrow for any cars to park
with safety to other traffic.

TO BROADCAST

In a radio broadcast tonight over Station WHUD, Morrisville, at 8:30 to 8:45, M/Sgt. Norbert J. Rix, of the USA and USAF Recruiting Service will discuss the advantages of offered by the USA and the USAF in a round table discussion with Paul Kilian, Fairview Lane, Oscar Tomlinson, 238 Cleveland st., and Ralph Clotti, 918 J. Jefferson avenue, Bristol, members of the 1948 graduating class of the Bristol High School, representing the parents and teachers will be John C. Burris, school counselor.

It was during April meeting of Hulmeville borough council last evening, that Councilman Edward Vansant, suggested that in spite of the fact the "dead-end" is not within the jurisdiction of Hulmeville borough, that combined action by a group of borough and township officials in that area might result in preventing accidents there. Hulme-ville councilmen therewith instructed council secretary to write Governor Duff suggesting that proper steps be taken at that intersection "to save lives and prevent suffering."

Councilman Vansant reported that careful check showed on that highway a sign reading "Slow," and advising there is a "stop" sign ahead. "But there is no 'stop' sign at the dead-end," he added. Councilmen expressed the opinion that strangers in the area, at night, unmindful of the "dead-end," are upon the cinder pile at its extremity almost instantly after going over a rise in the highway.

Within 12 hours on the night of March 19-20 eight people were injured in three accidents, and one of the cars completely demolished. On Sunday evening of this week a family of six was injured and their automobile demolished. In the most recent crash, the one at 9:30 last evening, a trio of young men was injured and their car greatly damaged.

It was mentioned at the Hulme-ville council meeting, that effective today, traffic was to be re-routed
over Route 1 and the spur mentioned above, due to repairs required along the Lincoln highway. This

"Heidi" Theme Sustains Strength of Character

Advanced theories in the field of mental suggestion can be attributed to Johanna Spyri, author of "Heidi" which will be presented as a stage play by the famous Clara Tree Major Children's Theatre of New York, N. Y., at the Grand Theatre, next Saturday, at 10 a. m.

It is evident that the author of the famed juvenile classic was something of a psychologist even by modern standards, in that she was keenly aware of the powerful influence which love, hate, and environment exercise upon the mental and physical well-being of young and old alike. When Heidi is brought to live in the crude Alpine cottage with her grandfather, the old man hates the entire village, which looks upon him as a dangerous eccentric.
But Heidi instinctively loves and understands her grandfather, who soon returns her devotion. As Heidi flourishes in this happy environment, so her grandfather in turn loses his cynicism and becomes gentle and kindly.

Throughout the entire story, the author of "Heidi" demonstrated that she appreciated the great therapeutic force exercised on the mind and body by love and hope. In the beginning, frail little Clara cannot walk. She has no confidence in herself or in anyone around her. But under the loving care of Heidi's grandfather and in the happy environment of his modest Alpine cottage, the child develops indomitable inner courage and an innate desire to be strong and straight of limb, which results in her complete recovery.

The production is being sponsored here by the Sisterhood of Avath Achm, with Mrs. Herman Silber heading the committee in charge.

NEW COINS

Congress and the mints have been the recipients of a plethora of suggestions for coins of new denominations, ranging from a 2-cent piece to 2½ cents, 3 cents, 6, 7 and 8 cents and 12½ cents. Various reasons are advanced for adding these numerous denominations to the nation's coinage. Material to be used is left largely to the decision of government officials.

Some of these coins would have merit, at that. Certainly the cent, or penny as it is sometimes called, is not of as much use today as would be a 2-cent or 3-cent coin. There isn't anything that can be bought with a cent anymore. Pennies are now used chiefly to pay sales taxes in sales tax states and cities, and in most of these transactions a 2-cent or 3-cent coin would come in more handy and, presumably, would occupy less space in pocket or purse.

A 12½-cent coin would come in handy when purchasing one two-for-a-quarter cigar. What a 2½-cent coin would be used for chiefly does not readily spring to mind, but no doubt it would have some functional uses.

Coins of two cents and three cents denominations were made in the past and they were sizeable masterpieces of the coin makers' art at that. Unlike the two-dollar paper note, which is still made but rarely seen, output of these coins was discontinued more than 60 years ago.

Well, new times, old customs. Perhaps a 2-cent or 3-cent coin is destined to again make its appearance in the nation's currency. Stranger things have happened. Who knows. Perhaps they will even be made of plastic.

GO TO SOME ANTS

"Go to the ant, thou sluggard" is an injunction that may have to be modified. Some ants—about 40 per cent—work hard enough to impress a sluggard, or a glutton for work. Since they're the ones that are out and about, it is easy to understand how the impression arose that all ants are that way.

But another 40 per cent, according to a group of scientific ant-observers from the American Museum of Natural History, are full-time sluggards themselves. They loaf around the ant-hill all day, and hardly lift a tentacle. The remaining 20 per cent are in-and-outers. They work when they feel like it, they loaf when they feel like it.

The advice to sluggards still stands, however. The only way to observe the lazy ants is to set up a device that lets people look into their homes. No sluggard is going to go to all that trouble. So the ants he actually sees will be a good example to him.

For the same reason sluggards aren't likely to get a glimpse of the queen ant and her boy friends, whose conduct, it has been alleged, is rather scandalous. In fact, they aren't likely to "go to the ant" at all.

After The Tax Cut

The combined Democratic vote in the two Houses was 109 against the President and 94 supporting him—a perfect indication of the manner in which Mr. Truman has succeeded in dividing his Party, and losing the larger part of it.

Considering the fact that the dispute over tax reductions has been the biggest single issue between Mr. Truman and the Republicans, the extent of his repudiation is almost unprecedented. One would have to dig deep into American history to find another case of a President being over-ruled by Congress in such landslide fashion.

Supporters of the President insisted that the vote on the European Relief Program was a vindication of Mr. Truman's policies, and that this program's success by a heavy vote was a victory for him that took the edge off his defeat in the tax issue.

The trouble with this reasoning is that a great many of those who voted for ERP did so because they felt this program was needed to repair the damage done by President Truman's past policies and actions.

The fact is that, if the foreign policies of Presidents Roosevelt and Truman had not resulted in abysmal failure, dividing the world into hostile camps and inviting a Third World War instead of fending it off, then there would have been no need for European relief on the extent voted by Congress.

This background keeps the vote favoring the ERP from being anything for which Mr. Truman can claim a vindication. Moreover, this was not and never has been distinctly a Truman program. It was dreamed up by Secretary of State Marshall to try to repair the harm done, first, by years of appeasing Russia, and second, by our "scorched earth" policy in Germany.

Again, the European Aid program wouldn't have had a chance if it hadn't been for the work done on its behalf by a Republican, Senator Vandenberg, who did a great deal more to get it through Congress than the President, Secretary Marshall, and the whole Department of State.

The entire emphasis, plan of organization, and duration of the program have been changed since it left the Truman-Marshall hands. What started out as a sort of WPA project on the international level, to be operated by the Department of State, has become an economic-military program, no longer directly under State Department control, and for only one year instead of four.

Another argument advanced by the Truman Democrats, trying to hide the extent of their defeat, is that the Tax-Cut Bill is a rash and politically motivated act which will have to be reversed in a matter of months—as soon as the campaign is over.

Of course, if the Democrats sweep the country under Truman, and regain control of Congress, they will repeal the tax reductions. On the other hand, if the Republicans win this fall, the whole tax structure will almost certainly be cut still further.

If, as some observers are beginning to predict, the Democrats bolt from President Truman at their coming convention, and nominate someone else who, by some stretch of imagination might be elected, then the odds are still strong that this new Democratic President would favor the tax cuts—since considerably better than half of the Democrats in Congress voted for the tax reductions even after the President had vetoed the Bill.

The only thing which could force early restoration of these tax cuts is further deterioration of the world situation under the heavy-handed policies of Mr. Truman and Secretary Marshall.

If the ERP fails to do what was promised, and reduce the danger of war; or if some of the belligerent acts which our representatives abroad insist on taking precipitate a crisis—if from either of these sources, or some other, we get into a shooting war, then the tax cuts will have to be repealed.

But that will be small comfort to Mr. Truman, for it will clearly reveal that ERP is merely one more costly blunder, weakening us at home without doing us any good abroad.

And the American voters will have small temptation to re-elect either the President or the Party so helpless to do justice to Uncle Sam's part in world affairs.

THE GREAT GAME OF POLITICS

By FRANK R. KENT

Ditching The President

Washington, April 6.
IT IS an ironic fact that outside of the South, where there is a special reason, the current clamor within the Democratic party against Mr. Truman comes not from the elements that logically might be expected to oppose his nomination but from those which by every rule of reason should support him.

CERTAINLY, he deeply distressed conservative and anti-New Deal Democrats when he vetoed the Taft-Hartley Bill; when he came out strongly for the so-called "civil rights," including that Fair Employment Practices Act which has so enraged the South; when he delivered his "State of the Union" message in which he went far to the left on social and spending legislation; when he failed to give encouragement to the effort to reduce the size and cost of the Federal bureaucracy.

HOWEVER, it is difficult to see in any of this—or in anything else Mr. Truman has done—an excuse for the vicious and vicious attempts to murder him now being made by the worshipful followers of the late Mr. Roosevelt. On the contrary, the course Mr. Truman has followed should have especially endeared him to these. For, without exception, every policy he has as a Roosevelt policy. Not one is original with him. Undoubtedly, most of them, such as the civil rights proposals and his support of the CIO bosses, are unopposed economically, demagogic politically and doubtful constitutionally. None the less, they are Roosevelt policies and as such were enthusiastically advocated by the very New Deal politicians, columnists and commentators who today are trying to cut his throat, hypocritically alleging that he has "abandoned the Roosevelt policies."

THIS is so transparently false that one wonders at the effrontery of those who charge it. Actually, the only two things alleged by these screeching anti-Trumanites which can be even measurably sustained are (1) that he has failed to keep in his Administration certain notorious New Dealers, notably Mr. James M. Landis; (2) that he reversed himself on the Palestine issue. So far as the first is concerned, it is true Mr. Truman made no effort to retain a number of those self-advertised statesmen, but in most cases there were adequate reasons for not doing so. In the case of Mr. Landis, it was a kindness to him that Mr. Truman "took the rap" without publicly proclaiming them. As to the second, Mr. Truman's original advocacy of Palestine partition was politically inspired by a desire to hold the big New York Jewish vote upon which the machine politicians count so heavily. That was not an admirable action. But later, when he realized his mistake and was convinced by the State Department and the Secretary of Defense that the national security was imperiled, he reversed himself. And that was an admirable action—nonpolitical and courageous.

WHATEVER Mr. Truman's deficiencies, it seems plain he is getting very shabby treatment from a group with a very poor case against him. Particularly mean is the slandering of the Roosevelt brothers, Franklin, Jr. and Elliott. The first, trading on his father's name, is ambitious to become governor of New York. He always plays close to the machine bosses locally and the CIO bosses nationally. The other is an unsavory specimen whose money-raising activities, promoted by his father, have done more to besmirch the latter's reputation than any other single thing. As for Mrs. Roosevelt, when she left for England she was "neutral." Recently some of her self-appointed spokesmen declare she will "stand by her sons," that she is a very great woman whom millions love and follow. Perhaps so, but there are other millions who regard her as a very dull, self-righteous and tiresome person, and who will certainly go in the opposite direction.

IT seems exceedingly unlikely that this drum-beating, anti-Truman drive will alter the conviction of General Eisenhower that a presidential nomination is something he distinctly does not want—especially one from a party not his own and engineered by individuals whom he does not highly esteem. Clearly, the sort of "draft" now suggested is one in which he would have to convince. Few believe that after his unequivocal statement he could be induced to do anything remotely involving of stultification. It is incredible that he would permit himself to be used by persons whose motives are so completely transparent and so wholly selfish. In brief, it is unlikely General Eisenhower can be played for a sap.

OF COURSE, it is possible Mr. Truman may be frightened by the kind of publicity the people behind this "drive" are able to command. But those who know him best do not think so. One reason is that he is not the sort of man to be scared out of a fight just because the odds are against him. Another is that certainly he will lose more self-respect and go down in history as a more shoddy character if he cuts under this kind of fire than if he stands up and takes his licks no matter how bad it may be. Hoover, Landon and William H. Taft all gained in public esteem through defeat.

STILL another reason is that there may be a change of political scenery before next November. In 1946 Mr. Truman's prestige was so low that a demand was made that he resign. In six months he was running ahead in the popularity polls. This is not to say Mr. Truman can duplicate that performance. Things look worse for him now than they did then. But it is possible. In any event, under existing circumstances, his stupidity in allowing this gang to ditch him would be exactly equal to the stupidity of the Democratic party in doing the ditching. Their fortunes are inseparably linked. In tearing down Mr. Truman all these snorting "liberals" can do is to make a bad situation worse.

budget their time, but seldom have time for play. "The older a child becomes, the amount of leisure time becomes less," asserted Miss Afflerbach.

Thirty-five Cub Scouts and their dads from Churchville, Southampton, Warminster and Richboro on April 17, will take part in a unique outing. Rain or shine, the cubs will fish in a nearby stream into which about 200 eight or ten-inch trout will have been released that morning.

A length of the stream, the name of which is being kept secret until "the day," will be fenced off at both ends to prevent the escape of the trout, and to keep them within reasonable reach of the young Ike Waltons.

The fish, purchased from the Trexler hatcheries for the event, will have gone unfed for two days before being dumped into the stream, so that they will be in the proper mood to admire any bait the small boys may offer.

This novel fishing project, the suggestion of Alfred F. Botke, father of one of the cubs and one of the Churchville packs' den dads, was almost as heartily received by the pack committee, composed of B. O. Todd, Samuel Lunan and Charles L. Baker, as well as by the boys themselves.

At a meeting at Culmaster Gordon Wilbur's home, details for the boys' fun and their safety while fishing were ironed out.

NEW COINS

Congress and the mints have been the recipients of a plethora of suggestions for coins of new denominations, ranging from a 2-cent piece to 2½ cents, 3 cents, 6, 7 and 8 cents and 12½ cents. Various reasons are advanced for adding these numerous denominations to the nation's coinage. Material to be used is left largely to the decision of government officials.

Some of these coins would have merit, at that. Certainly the cent, or penny as it is sometimes called, is not as much use today as would be a 2-cent or 3-cent coin. There isn't anything that can be bought with a cent anymore. Pennies are now used chiefly to pay sales taxes in sales tax states and cities, and in most of these transactions a 2-cent or 3-cent coin would come in more handy and, presumably, would occupy less space in pocket or purse.

A 12½-cent coin would come in handy when purchasing one two-for-a-quarter cigar. What a 2½-cent coin would be used for chiefly does not readily spring to mind, but no doubt it would have some functional uses.

Coins of two cents and three cents denominations were made in the past and they were sizeable masterpieces of the coin makers' art at that. Unlike the two-dollar paper note, which is still made but rarely seen, output of these coins was discontinued more than 60 years ago.

Well, new times, old customs. Perhaps a 2-cent or 3-cent coin is destined to again make its appearance in the nation's currency. Stranger things have happened. Who knows. Perhaps they will even be made of plastic.

"Go to the ant, thou sluggard" is an injunction that may have to be modified. Some ants—about 40 per cent—work hard enough to impress a sluggard, or a glutton for work. Since they're the ones that are out and about, it is easy to understand how the impression arose that all ants are that way.

But another 40 per cent, according to a group of scientific ant-observers from the American Museum of Natural History, are full-time sluggards themselves. They loaf around the ant-hill all day, and hardly lift a tentacle. The remaining 20 per cent are in-and-outers. They work when they feel like it, they loaf when they feel like it.

The advice to sluggards still stands, however. The only way to observe the lazy ants is to set up a device that lets people look into their homes. No sluggard is going to go to all that trouble. So the ants he actually sees will be a good example to him.

For the same reason sluggards aren't likely to get a glimpse of the queen ant and her boy friends, whose conduct, it has been alleged, is rather scandalous. In fact, they aren't likely to "go to the ant" at all.

The combined Democratic vote in the two Houses was 109 against the President and 94 supporting him—a perfect indication of the manner in which Mr. Truman has succeeded in dividing his Party, and losing the larger part of it.

Considering the fact that the dispute over tax reductions has been the biggest single issue between Mr. Truman and the Republicans, the extent of his repudiation is almost unprecedented. One would have to dig deep into American history to find another case of a President being over-ruled by Congress in such landslide fashion.

Supporters of the President insisted that the vote on the European Relief Program was a vindication of Mr. Truman's policies, and that this program's success by a heavy vote was a victory for him that took the edge off his defeat in the tax issue.

The trouble with this reasoning is that a great many of those who voted for ERP did so because they felt this program was needed to repair the damage done by President Truman's past policies and actions.

The fact is that, if the foreign policies of Presidents Roosevelt and Truman had not resulted in abysmal failure, dividing the world into hostile camps and inviting a Third World War instead of fending it off, then there would have been no need for European relief on the extent voted by Congress.

This background keeps the vote favoring the ERP from being anything for which Mr. Truman can claim a vindication. Moreover, this was not and never has been distinctly a Truman program. It was dreamed up by Secretary of State Marshall to try to repair the harm done, first, by years of appeasing Russia, and second, by our "scorched earth" policy in Germany.

Again, the European Aid program wouldn't have had a chance if it hadn't been for the work done on its behalf by a Republican, Senator Vandenberg, who did a great deal more to get it through Congress than the President, Secretary Marshall, and the whole Department of State.

The entire emphasis, plan of organization, and duration of the program have been changed since it left the Truman-Marshall hands. What started out as a sort of WPA project on the international level, to be operated by the Department of State, has become an economic-military program, no longer directly under State Department control, and for only one year instead of four.

Another argument advanced by the Truman Democrats, trying to hide the extent of their defeat, is that the Tax-Cut Bill is a rash and politically motivated act which will have to be reversed in a matter of months—as soon as the campaign is over.

Of course, if the Democrats sweep the country under Truman, and regain control of Congress, they will repeal the tax reductions. On the other hand, if the Republicans win this fall, the whole tax structure will almost certainly be cut still further.

If, as some observers are beginning to predict, the Democrats bolt from President Truman at their coming convention, and nominate someone else who, by some stretch of imagination might be elected, then the odds are still strong that this new Democratic President would favor the tax cuts—since considerably better than half of the Democrats in Congress voted for the tax reductions even after the President had vetoed the Bill.

The only thing which could force early restoration of these tax cuts is further deterioration of the world situation under the heavy-handed policies of Mr. Truman and Secretary Marshall.

If the ERP fails to do what was promised, and reduce the danger of war; or if some of the belligerent acts which our representatives abroad insist on taking precipitate a crisis—if from either of these sources, or some other, we get into a shooting war, then the tax cuts will have to be repealed.

But that will be small comfort to Mr. Truman, for it will clearly reveal that ERP is merely one more costly blunder, weakening us at home without doing us any good abroad.

And the American voters will have small temptation to re-elect either the President or the Party so helpless to do justice to Uncle Sam's part in world affairs.

THE GREAT GAME OF POLITICS

By FRANK R. KENT

Ditching The President

Washington, April 6.
IT IS an ironical fact that outside of the South, where there is a special reason, the current clamor within the Democratic party against Mr. Truman comes not from the elements that logically might be expected to oppose his nomination but from those which by every rule of reason should support him.

CERTAINLY, he deeply distressed conservative and anti-New Deal Democrats when he vetoed the Taft-Hartley bill; when he came out strongly for the so-called "civil rights" including that Fair Employment Practices Act which has so enraged the South; when he delivered his "State of the Union" message in which he went far to the left on social and spending legislation; when he failed to give encouragement to the effort to reduce the size and cost of the Federal bureaucracy.

HOWEVER, it is difficult to see in any of this—or in anything else Mr. Truman has done—an excuse for the vicious and vociferous attempt to murder him now being made by the worshipful followers of the late Mr. Roosevelt. On the contrary, the course Mr. Truman has followed should have especially endeared him to these. For, without exception, every policy he has as a Roosevelt policy. Not one is original with him. Undoubtedly, most of them, such as the civil-rights proposals and his support of the CIO bosses, are unsound economically, demagogic politically and doubtful constitutionally. None the less, they are Roosevelt policies and as such were enthusiastically advocated by the very New Deal politicians, columnists and commentators who today are trying to cut his throat hypocritically alleging that he has "abandoned the Roosevelt policies."

THIS is so transparently false that one wonders at the effrontery of those who charge it. Actually, the only two things alleged by these screeching anti-Trumanites which can be even measurably sustained are (1) that he has failed to keep in his Administration certain notorious New Dealers, notably Mr. James M. Landis; (2) that he reversed himself on the Palestine issue. So far as the first is concerned, it is true Mr. Truman made no effort to retain a number of these self-advised statesmen, but in most cases there were adequate reasons for not doing so. In the case of Mr. Landis, it was a kindness to him that Mr. Truman "took the rap" without publicly proclaiming their original advocacy of Palestine partition was politically inspired by a desire to hold the big New York Jewish vote upon which the machine politicians count so heavily. That was not an admirable action. But later, when he realized his mistake and was convinced by the State Department and the Secretary of Defense that the national security was imperiled, he reversed himself. And that was an admirable action—nonpolitical and courageous.

WHATEVER Mr. Truman's deficiencies, it seems plain he is getting very shabby treatment from a group with a very poor case against him. Particularly mean is the yapping of the Roosevelt brothers, Franklin, Jr., and Elliott. The first, trading on his father's name, is ambitious to become governor of New York. He always plays close to the machine bosses locally and the CIO bosses nationally. The other is an unsavory specimen whose money-raising activities, promoted by his father, have done more to besmirch the latter's reputation than any other single thing. As for Mrs. Roosevelt, she was "neutral." Recently some of her self-appointed spokesmen declare she will "stand by her sons," that she is a very great woman whom millions love and follow. Perhaps so, but there are other millions who regard her as a very dull, self-righteous and tiresome person, and who will certainly go in the opposite direction.

IT seems exceedingly unlikely that this drum-beating, anti-Truman drive will alter the conviction of General Eisenhower that a presidential nomination is something he distinctly does not want—especially one from a party not his own and engineered by individuals whom he does not highly esteem. Clearly, the sort of "draft" now suggested is one in which he would have to connive. Few believe that after his unequivocal statement he could be induced to do anything remotely savoring of stultification. It is incredible that he would permit himself to be used by persons whose motives are so completely transparent and so wholly selfish.

In brief, it is unlikely General Eisenhower can be played for a sap. OF COURSE, it is possible Mr. Truman may be frightened by the kind of publicity the people behind this "drive" are able to command. But those who know him best do not think so. One reason is that he is not the sort of man to be scared out of a fight just because the odds are against him. Another is that certainly he will lose more self-respect and go down in history as a more shoddy character if he quits under this kind of fire than if he stands up and takes his licking no matter how bad it may be. Hoover, Landon and William H. Taft all gained in public esteem through defeat.

STILL another reason is that there may be a change of political scenery before next November. In 1946 Mr. Truman's prestige was so low that a demand was made that he resign. In six months he was running ahead in the popularity polls. This is not to say Mr. Truman can duplicate that performance. Things look worse for him now than they did then. But it is possible. In any event, under existing circumstances, his stupidity in allowing this gang to ditch him would be exactly equal to the stupidity of the Democratic party in doing the ditching. Their fortunes are inseparably linked. In tearing down Mr. Truman all these snorting "liberals" can do is to make a bad situation worse.

budget their time, but seldom have time for play. "The older a child becomes, the amount of leisure time becomes less," asserted Miss Afflerbach.

Thirty-five Cub Scouts and their dads from Churchville, Southampton, Warminster and Richboro on April 17, will take part in a unique outing. Rain or shine, the cubs will fish in a nearby stream into which about 200 eight or ten-inch trout will have been released that morning.

A length of the stream, the name of which is being kept secret until "the day," will be fenced off at both ends to prevent the escape of the trout, and to keep them within reasonable reach of the young Ike Waltons.

The fish, purchased from the Trexler hatcheries for the event, will have gone unfed for two days before being dumped into the stream, so that they will be in the proper mood to admire any bait the small boys may offer.

This novel fishing project, the suggestion of Alfred F. Bottke, father of one of the cubs and one of the Churchville packs' den dads, was almost as heartily received by the pack committee, composed of B. O. Todd, Samuel Lungan and Charles L. Baker, as well as by the boys themselves.

At a meeting at Cubmaster Gordon Wilbur's home, details for the boys' fun and their safety while fishing were ironed out.

The Lewis Blockade

—by—
SAMUEL B. PETTENGILL
"The Gentleman from Indiana"

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Whenever John L. Lewis decides to blockade the United States of America, people take sides on the merits of his demands. That confuses the issue. It is seldom that either side is wholly right or wholly wrong.

The real issue is this: Should any law give any man for any reason the power to take this country by the throat and squeeze it until it yields to him?

When we set up judges and juries, in place of private revenge, outlawed duels, and substituted law for force, we did not stop to first settle all private claims. We simply said that claimants must seek justice in ways consistent with the peace of the community. We said no one shall make private war against his adversary or the country that shelters him. We can, perhaps, afford what the Supreme Court calls "Permissible areas of conflict" in labor management disputes of small dimensions. We can no longer afford strikes affecting the entire nation.

At this writing, the country still breathes, but economic strangulation proceeds daily. If the present strike goes on, John Lewis will cost us as much—in a month—as the aid-to-Europe plan for a year. He has already stopped a quarter of the railroad trains burning coal. He has stopped coal exports to Europe. He has stopped thousands of men from earning their living. In a month he will stop millions from working unless he is stopped.

In one of his previous strikes—and this was in war time—Lewis and Fairless, of United States Steel, were in conference. Lewis is reported to have said: "The fate of the world rests on this rug" in the room where the two men sat. Not even the war could proceed until Lewis was pleased to permit it.

That's too much power to be given to any man. Yet the law gave Lewis the power to make that boast.

The law should be changed. Industry-wide, or nationwide bargaining and control of a vital resource should never be in the hands of one man, drunk or sober. Absolute power has no place in this republic. Workingmen in the steel mills, factories and railroads have a right to work equal to coal miners.

Except for the Taft-Hartley law, which President Truman vetoed and would repeal, he would have no legal weapon to meet the current strike. The President has now invoked that law as he had recently done at Oak Ridge. This puts him in a curious position in his campaign for re-election. On the other hand, Mr. Truman knows the most popular day he has lived in office was when he slugged it out with Lewis in the previous strike.

It is interesting to note, also, that the Miners' Welfare and Retirement Fund, which now holds $30,000,000, was created by the very "slave labor law" Mr. Lewis thunders against.

The Department of Justice will seek to enjoin Lewis again. It knows how fraudulent is the Lewis claim that this is not a strike but rather a "not able and willing to work" stoppage. When 200,000 men stop work on the same day, it smells like a strike even though you call it a rose. If there were anything in this flap-doodle, then we could abolish war by calling it hop-skip-and-jump.

There is no question of hours, wages, or working conditions involved. The strike is called while the contract still has to run until June 30th. It is called with reference to a legal question as to who is covered by pension provisions—a question which is not an emergency one, and peculiarly within the province of a court to decide.

The real purpose of the strike is to permit Lewis to get complete control of the $30,000,000 pension fund. If Truman doesn't fight this out with all weapons available, we had better avoid trouble with Stalin.

The Lewis Blockade

—by—

SAMUEL B. PETTENGILL
"The Gentleman from Indiana"

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Whenever John L. Lewis decides to blockade the United States of America, people take sides on the merits of his demands. That confuses the issue. It is seldom that either side is wholly right or wholly wrong.

The real issue is this: Should any law give any man for any reason the power to take this country by the throat and squeeze it until it yields to him?

When we set up judges and juries, in place of private revenge, outlawed duels, and substituted law for force, we did not stop to first settle all private claims. We simply said that claimants must seek justice in ways consistent with the peace of the community. We said no one shall make private war against his adversary or the country that shelters him. We can, perhaps, afford what the Supreme Court calls "Permissible areas of conflict" in labor management disputes of small dimensions. We can no longer afford strikes affecting the entire nation.

At this writing, the country still breathes, but economic strangulation proceeds daily. If the present strike goes on, John Lewis will cost us as much in a month—as the aid-to-Europe plan for a year. He has already stopped a quarter of the railroad trains burning coal. He has stopped thousands of men from earning their living. In a month he will stop millions from working unless he is stopped.

In one of his previous strikes—and this was in war time—Lewis and Fairless, of United States Steel, were in conference. Lewis is reported to have said: "The fate of the world rests on this rug" in the room where the two men sat. Not even the war could proceed until Lewis was pleased to permit it.

That's too much power to be given to any man. Yet the law gave Lewis the power to make that boast.

The law should be changed. Industry-wide, or nationwide bargaining and control of a vital resource should never be in the hands of one man, drunk or sober. Absolute power has no place in this republic. Workingmen in the steel mills, factories and railroads have a right to work equal to coal miners.

Except for the Taft-Hartley law, which President Truman vetoed and would repeal, he would have no legal weapon to meet the current strike. The President has now invoked that law as he had recently done at Oak Ridge. This puts him in a curious position in his campaign for re-election. On the other hand, Mr. Truman knows the most popular day he has lived in office was when he slugged it out with Lewis in the previous strike.

It is interesting to note, also, that the Miners' Welfare and Retirement Fund, which now holds $30,000,000, was created by the very "slave labor law" Mr. Lewis thunders against.

The Department of Justice will seek to enjoin Lewis again. It knows how fraudulent is the Lewis claim that this is not a strike but rather a "not able and willing to work" stoppage. When 200,000 men stop work on the same day, it smells like a strike even though you call it a rose. If there were anything in this flap-doodle, then we could abolish war by calling it hop-skip-and-jump.

There is no question of hours, wages, or working conditions involved. The strike is called while the contract still has to run until June 30th. It is called with reference to a legal question as to who is covered by pension provisions—a question which is not an emergency one, and peculiarly within the province of a court to decide.

The real purpose of the strike is to permit Lewis to get complete control of the $30,000,000 pension fund. If Truman doesn't fight this out with all weapons available, we had better avoid trouble with Stalin.

re-routing has nothing to do with the dead-end menace, however, and decision was made to contact the governor of the state to guard against danger in the future.

The re-routing of traffic started at eight o'clock this morning. Penna. State Police at Langhorne barracks advise, "Repairs are to be made all along the Lincoln Highway in the Parkland and Pennel area" officers state. For this reason east-bound traffic was routed over Route 1, through Parkland and Pennel; and west-bound traffic over the spur through Langhorne.

In the crash at the dead-end last night at 9:30, the following were injured:

John Greis, 21, of 3300 block of Friendship street, Philadelphia.

John Kettleberger, 18, of 3300 block of St. Vincent street, Philadelphia.

Richard MacArthur, 21, of 3400 block of Brighton street, Philadelphia.

All had multiple injuries, and were taken to Nazareth Hospital, Phila.

Which young man was at the wheel is not determined as yet by police. The car was badly damaged.

church improvements and repairs was given by Howard Booz. Due to the expiration of terms for two trustees, Robert Ruehl was re-elected, and Marion Whippa elected to replace Adrian Bustraan, who declined re-election. Term of office is three years.

Nominations were then made for elders. Dr. John Hargrave and Eli Peck, whose terms had expired, were re-elected. Two additional elders were elected, Sherman Bailey and Harry Fischer.

The proposed benevolence fund for the ensuing year was presented by the pastor and adopted.

Installation of the newly-elected trustees and elders will be held during next Sunday morning service.

WANT BOUNTY PAYMENTS FOR RED FOX HERE

DOYLESTOWN, Apr. 6—In an effort to force the Pennsylvania Game Commission to restore bounty payments on the red fox in Bucks county, petitions will be circulated among residents, landowners, taxpayers and sportsmen by member clubs of the Bucks County Federation of Sportsmen's Clubs.

This action was taken last evening when delegates from 15 sportsmen's clubs met in the K. G. E. Hall here.
